Who We Are

Circular Matters is a consulting firm that assists businesses, industry organizations and state, local, and federal government clients engaged in recycling, circular economy, sustainable material management, and other end-of-life activities to better understand and navigate this complex, constantly changing world. Each Circular Matters team member has 25–35 years of experience in the sustainable materials management arena.

Legislative Tracking

To help clients stay apprised of policy developments, we offer legislative tracking services. We follow packaging and waste management policy activity nationally and in all 50 states to identify legislation being considered that might have an impact on our clients. We receive daily updates and monitor bill progress and amendments. We provide information in a manner and on a schedule that works best for each client, whether email notifications for “hot button” topics or monthly PowerPoint summaries to show trends across the nation. Being cognizant of legislative activity across the country helps our clients make smart business decisions.

Local Ordinance Tracking

Circular Matters is also able to monitor and report on local ordinance developments – providing clients with information about activities at the local level that can impact their business/organization. We tailor and time the delivery of this information to suit each client’s needs.

Strategic Response/Positioning

Circular Matters is poised to help your company or organization decide whether and how to respond to legislation/ordinances being considered. As sustainable materials management specialists instead of lobbyists, we identify nuances in legislative language that have specific implications for our clients. Our extensive knowledge of stakeholders in the industry and their positions on various issues enables us to identify key threats and opportunities, advise on priorities and positioning strategy, and identify organizations to align with as well as those to watch out for.

Whether you have the need for a position paper, testimony, a stakeholder engagement plan, or just options and advice, we are here for you.
